Great Southern Collection

Murray River by luxury Houseboat

08 - 12 October 2010

"In South Australia, the mighty Murray River carves its way past towering cliffs, stately red gums, citrus orchards and vast expanses of green vineyards.

For the visitor to the Big River Country, there's a special way to experience the majesty of one of the world's great waterways - from the deck of a luxury houseboat. The scenery changes at every bend with birds of a bewildering variety flocking in from as far as the Gulf of Carpentaria to breed among the tough Mallee scrub. The river's moods are constantly changing too ...from the silence of an early morning mist to the spectacular fireworks of a bush sunset. Cruising the Murray in South Australia brings you fascinating glimpses of the past at many of the small historic towns and scattered rural communities along the river. Enjoy a BBQ with freshly caught river fish.

There's no better way to enjoy a relaxing holiday than cruising down the river on a houseboat."
